

TOBIN QUILTS AS HE DENOUNCES HARDING

A. F. of L. Treasurer Resigns
Rather Than Support Motion on Jobless Conference

Daniel J. Tobin, a few years ago

The "stony petrel" of Doan's law movement, jumped into the limelight at the conference of the American Federation of Laborers, First when he denounced the Harding administration as unfavorable to labor and resigned his post as treasurer of the A. F. of L. rather than support the election of La Follette. President's proposed unemployment conference.

For more than ten years Tobin had been international head of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, and since 1917 has been treasurer of the federation. At the recent Denver convention of that organization he was one of those who battled for the reelection of Louis Gompers.

Owing to Tobin's opposition

Federalist policy toward the conference is still up in the air. "We will take no position," says one source, "until it is taken in all probability, at the November meeting of the Federalist executive council."

MOVED TO TABLE MATTER.

The fireworks started when Gen. James M. Smith, upon the proposed conference suggestion by Mr. Harding, urged that he be authorized to attend the gathering as representative of the Federalists. The President extend an invitation to him?

Instantly Tobin is reported to have leaped to his feet shouting mad, and asking the whole matter until an invitation was made to him "and something is known of the personnel of the conference." "Personalities!"

"Personalities?" went on "I am not in favor of any more talk. We have had too much talk in Washington already. What the unemployed want is work—not talk."

could do so without trouble I starting some of the badly needed improvements. That might help on the common laborer. It is true, but in just one way. It would reduce the sum total of the suffering."

"TOO MUCH KNOWTOWING."

Replying to a statement that if the President issues an invitation to the conference the Federation cannot well ignore it, Tobin said:

"It is all right for the officials of Washington to go to the White House when called there, but the way of thinking there has been entirely too much running here and there to Secretary Davis and too much knowtowing to an administration that is unfriendly to labor."

MAN FREELY OFFERS BLOOD TO INVALIDS

Lynn War Veteran Asks Only Fighting Chance for His Own Life

Actuated by a desire to save unfortunate fellow creatures, William J. Levey, thirty-year-old, full-blooded Mexican Indian, today offered himself to the medical profession as a subject for blood transfusion, skin grafting or similar operation.

Levey, a veteran of the World War, who lives at No. 9 Stewart street, Lynn, made only one proviso, in the event that he was left a fighting chance for recovery from any operation that might be performed.

The young man's offer, while without any hope of material gain, is a result of the observations which he has made on the sufferings of human nature.

He said that he had in mind more particularly blood transfusion and skin grafting, although he admitted not to know of any other way in which he could serve humanity but he was glad to do so.

Levey, who is employed in a South Boston factory, was previously a chauffeur and it was while riding about the country that he determined on his present course. After noting the many industries and the waste of life in the country, he decided to be a soldier and a fighter, and he decided to be a soldier and a fighter, and he decided to be a soldier and a fighter.

HEARD WHAT ANOTHER WOMAN SAID

Mrs. Margaret Bonner of Murray Street, St. John, N. B., writes: "I heard a lady saying she bought a bottle of Dr. Truett's Little for her children, and it was splendid. I got a bottle and I think it is great."

This laudatory mention above in Dr. Truett's Little, the Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It is very pleasant to use, children like it, and it is mild in action. No harmful drugs. It's surprising to know the number of youngsters and even grown-ups who suffer from worms but don't realize it. Every one needs a good laxative.

Common symptoms of worms: Officious breath, swollen upper lip, loss of sleep, eye heavy and drooping, loss of appetite, loss of weight, loss of energy, loss of interest in work, loss of interest in school, loss of interest in life.

Declares Russian Relief Is Possible if Politics Is Barred

By NORMAN MAPOOD.
Staff Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The technical discussion of Russian relief is being exaggerated. Certain steps are possible that would make the task easier than it looks.

The largest cause of the famine is the breakdown of transportation. That breakdown was caused by the official inactivity of the railroads, by the great war by the latter, and by the blockade.

An essential element in the present situation is the question of the peasants. During the last war, the Russian government, the Soviet government, the Polish government, and the German government, all of them, have been engaged in a struggle for the control of the Russian railways.

GIRL BOUND, GAGGED AND ROBBED OF $15,000

Atlantic City, Aug. 31.—Interrupted while dressing by two men, masked and armed with revolvers, who entered her room in a boarding house, Miss Anna Knoche of Philadelphia was gagged and bound and robbed of jewelry valued at nearly $15,000.

The trouble was caused by a crowd attempting to prevent the Davidson going to work. The police intervened, and, being stoned by the mob, were obliged to fire upon it. Details as to the number of casualties have not been received.

A dispatch from Calicut states that a column of British troops was ambushed at Pakkavai by Moplahs, a hot fire being poured into the British ranks.

Friends of the bride-to-be had arranged for the shower a week ago to take place last evening, but on Sunday evening, Miss Devlin and her fiance, Fred Devlin, also of Hyde Park, were married at the Church of the Most Precious Blood, parish residence.

JAPAN MUST GIVE UP QUAM-YAP CABLE

Washington, Aug. 31.—(By the Associated Press.)—The United States must surrender the former German-owned Quam-Yap cable to the United States as one of the conditions of a settlement of the Yap issue outside the forthcoming disarmament conference. It was learned from official sources.

It was understood that an agreement which will eliminate the Yap issue, and even the general mandate issue, from the November meeting will be reached.

CAMPERS SCATTERED BY FUGITIVE APE

Pittsfield, Aug. 31.—An animal, said to be an ape, frightened a party of campers in the woods off the Pittsfield-Lenox road. The animal leaped into the circle of the campfire, doubtless attracted by the odor of cooking food. It disappeared as quickly as it had appeared.

An ape escaped from a carnival in North Adams yesterday afternoon. The campers believe the animal may be the same.

NO CHECKEE, NO WASHIE!
Meet your little Anna May Wong, at 1514, whose weekly stipend is only $150 a week. Although she's in the movies now, she still pins shirts in her father's laundry in Los Angeles. Cash, but us girls have a hard time! (U. & U.)

QUIT THAT SPEEDIN'!
The high bike was speeding along at the reckless rate of 6 miles an hour when caught by this traffic officer. The Capital has launched a drive against all speeders, both in and out of motor. No vehicle is exempt, from lowly bicycle to fast auto. (W. W.)

FORGET ME NOT!
Who could forget this charming hair ornament, a smart combination of rosette and forget-me-nots set on a band of precious metals? One of the most popular with the debutants "who care." (U. & U.)

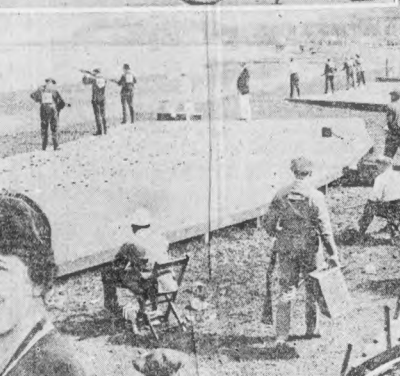

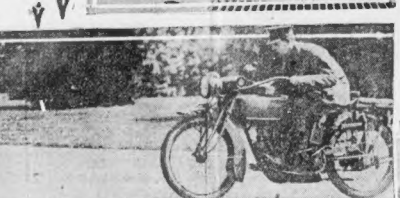

BOSTON MAY BE NEXT!
Queen Victoria would be considerably checked if she could see this London policeman, a real lady "bobbler," directing traffic in busy Trafalgar square. Women, it seems, don't hesitate to ask them questions. (U. & U.)

SLIPPING, SLIPPING! If the ground hadn't been wet, and if she hadn't slipped, and, anyway, if her side had been the stronger, this and girl might have won the tug-of-war for the "Wares" women members of the British Air

A-HIKING WE MUST GO!
Portland, Me., cleaned its glasses when these fair walkers and their companions "came to town." Molly Linderman and Lena Meyers, Brooklyn school teachers, are on a hike from N. Y. to northern Maine. (K.)

SHOOTING STARS! Among the most skillful shots of either sex at the Grand American handicap tourney, South Shore Country Club, Chicago, was the comely Mrs. Toots Randal, women's national champion, shown at left, whose marksmanship again won her high honors. Mrs. Randal hails from New York and has been handling a gun since she was a child. The larger photo (above) shows the shoot at the height of the tournament. The entrants in the rear are watching their competitors as the clay rises into the air. (Int.)

LET HIM, LET HIM UP! Why, Peggy Kurton, you remember what happened to Bryan Downey when he tried to teach Johnny Wilson before he had his knees off the clogs? However, Peggy is only showing Ted Kid Lewis her hardest punch for passengers aboard the S. S. Adriatic. Miss Marjorie Lodge is refereeing the bout. Lewis said it was about enough. (Int.)

STAMPS TODAY, LADY! Paris boasts of having the only stamp market in the world. It stands back of the Champs d'Elysees Gardens, and dates back hundreds of years. Buyers and sellers of all kinds of stamps frequent the mart. Woman is shown buying a collection. (W. W.)

A-MILKING SIR, SHE SAID! Maida Van Busskirk, 16, of Sunbury, Pa., is the champion cattle judge of her State. Made higher score than 100 competitors during Young Farmers' Week. (W. W.)

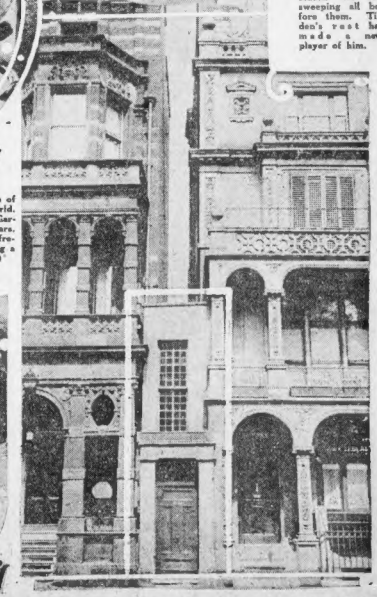

SWAN SONG! Miss H. V. Moody, 93 River road, Waltham, is the last, but not the least, Sea Beauty to whom $5 is awarded. All pictures retained, in the hope that they could be used, will be returned.

OH, SHOOT! If Marie Prevost's aim is as good as her looks, separate yourself from the vicinity. Anyway, Marie has the reputation of "getting her man" when she goes gunning for him. Note her dainty manner of handling the pill shooter—finger curled "in everything."

TENNIS ROYALTY!
The king and queen of the settled court, Mrs. Mallory and Bill Tilden, regulars at Long Island this week for the mixed doubles. Both have found their stride this season and are sweeping all before them. Tilden's rest has made a new player of him.

A PINT-SIZE HOUSE! This little structure, wedged between the two stately buildings, is really the smallest inhabited house on a principal street in the world, situated at No. 10 Hyde Park place, Baywater road, England. It is no larger than a big packing case. Its every convenience and luxury possessed by the larger structures.

WINTHROP MAN HELD IN BIG BOONDOFT

Harding Accused of Break and Larceny of $87,000 in Liberty

Carl O. Harding, twenty-eight years old, of Somerset avenue, Waltham, charged with breaking and entering, the larceny of $87,000 worth of Liberty Bonds, the property of the Boston & Albany Railroad, was arraigned before Justice Parmenter in the Municipal Court today and held for the September Grand Jury in default of $10,000 bail. He also was charged with receiving stolen property valued at $10,000 from the U. S. Railway Administration.

Harding's arrest following that of Miss Gild, taken into custody in Providence, and was made by inspectors Dorsey, Augustus and Donovan. According to the inspectors, Harding has confessed selling some of the securities and had declared that, following the arrest of Gild, he placed the bonds in a paper package, weighed it with some stones and issued it into the water from the Weston bridge connecting Weston and Athol.

Police of Riverside station, aided by detectives from the Boston and Albany, are today grasping the river bridge there in the hope of finding the missing securities.

Harding insists he had no hand in the theft.

He is a veteran of the World War, having served with the V-D contingent in France as a member of the 101st Machine Gun Company, which was largely made up of young men of Waltham. He was wounded in the Argonne.

He is given in the city directory as president of the Harbord Company, No. 131 State street, and since early summer he has been living with his wife and mother at a cottage in Rockport. The place is one of the finest in that resort, and he bought it in 1920, paying $25,000 cash for it.

The Harding has been prominent in social affairs at Rockport and in Waltham.

collect his navy bonus with a loaded pistol. Little Henry's daddy stood between that man and State officials. Papa Cuneo did not blink from his duty. He went to his grave to save others, leaving behind little Henry, the "apple of his eye," and eight other children.

Henry's little sister, Marie Louise, who is five, cannot understand papa's long absence either. Edward, who is eight, knows. He heard his mamma and his older brothers and sisters talking about the day at the cemetery when mamma fainted and everybody feared she, too, might die. Edward recalls the flowers and the long ride in a big closed automobile with curtains drawn so that he couldn't look out as he wanted to.

Mrs. Cuneo and her children, Harold, ten; Winifred, twelve; Andrew, Jr., fourteen; Eleanor, who will be sixteen in December; Dennis, seventeen; and John, the man of the house now, a fine, quieting lad of nineteen, have been kept busy answering the questions of the younger children about daddy.

Every person who contributed to the Cuneo fund helped little Henry and the eight other fatherless children. The Cuneo way will cry out today when Andrew A. Badaracco, Allen F. Frederick of the fund committee, and the Boston American paid tribute to the home reminded her of her dead husband.

"The sympathy and generosity of the people here is wonderful," said she. "It has helped comfort me. The fund the Boston American is raising I look upon as a tribute to my poor husband, to his faithful duty, and John, the man of the house now, a fine, quieting lad of nineteen, have been kept busy answering the questions of the younger children about daddy."

England Officially at Peace, Turkey Excepted

By Associated Press.
London, Aug. 31.—At mid-night tonight England will be officially at peace with all her enemies during the world war with the exception of Turkey. This date, formally terminating the technical state of war which has prevailed since the cessation of actual hostilities, was fixed by an order in council on August 10.

In business and legal circles this official conclusion of the struggle, which actually ended two years ago, is of much significance, but what the ordinary citizen will probably regard as the most practical effect will be the extension of the hours for dispensing liquor under the new licensing act, which superseded the defense of the realm regulations, which lapsed with the end of hostilities.

Some restrictions imposed by these regulations have, however, been embodied in other enactments, some of which are expected to be repealed soon. Legal obligations held in abeyance "for the duration of the war" become binding tomorrow.

In the upper berth was a coat and waistcoat and hat, together with a check book, with the name and address of the Ocean Accident and Assurance Corporation, Ltd., for which O'Brien was agent, and a letter containing a policy on the Great Insurance Company of New York.

Officers of the insurance company, No. 100 Bill street, said that O'Brien had given up all hope of seeing his husband alive, and the belief that he had committed suicide was strengthened in the mind of the officials.

When the steamship arrived here from Portland, O'Brien's statement was found to be untruthful and neither of the berths had been slept in.

AFTER MILLION IN SUNKEN TREASURE

Steam Trawler Off to Recover
Bulion on Lost Liner
Merida

By Associated Press.
New York, Aug. 31.—Bound on a quest for more than a million dollars in sunken treasure, the steam trawler Merida was leaving South today, headed for Cape Charles, Va., and the submerged wreck of the World Line steamship Merida.

The little trawler's decks were littered with equipment for the salvaging operation when she sailed from here late yesterday, and her crew included Frank O'Leary, one of the best known of deep sea divers, and two assistants, George W. Nordstrom, chief officer of the Merida when she went down, also was aboard to aid in locating the wreck.

The Merida was sunk in about thirty-five fathoms of water on May 12, 1911, in a collision with the steamship Admiral Yarnall. Her cargo included gold and silver bullion valued at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, and other valuables.

BRACES IN FAREWELL GAME OF THE SEASON AGAINST REDS

By NICK FLATLEY

Strangely though it may seem, the Braves have a chance to even up a series today by winning a ball game. If they capture the final game from the Reds, they get an even break, which is more than has been possible at the top end of any engagement here recently.

The losing parade is over and the Braves go away after this afternoon's conflict. They still have in their hands, but their afternoon battle must improve greatly if they wish to stay in the money position.

The clash practically ends the Braves' home season, as the team only returns for two more short series, away down toward the elbow. They go forth for a short while through the rest and then make their last western trip.

Even though the long stretch of defeat, the club was always smiling, and ever dangerous, and big crowds have been the result. There was sure a fight, if there wasn't a fight.

Hiram Johnson Would Like to Know

So Would You—and Everybody Else
Copyright, 1921, Star Company

You will read some extracts from Senator Hiram Johnson's recent speech in the Senate on things he would like to know. Everything quoted here is YOUR business, and is very important to YOU. So read.

(From the Congressional Record report of Hiram Johnson's speech, published August 10.)

Senator Johnson said:

I am very much interested in our international relations, and I am of a very curious turn of mind. I should like to know about the treaty that is being negotiated, if one is being negotiated between this country and Germany at the present time.

[This treaty has since been signed and made public.]

I do not claim, of course, that I have the right to know; but I inquire wherever I can for such information as may be obtained respecting that treaty in order that I may be fully advised and may act subsequently as I desire.

I assume that there is a duty that Senators have upon this floor, a duty, Mr. President, that Senators of the United States will fulfill, no matter what the consequences may be to them.

I assume that when a man has attained the presumed prominence of a Senator of the United States he acts as his judgment or as that much-misused word, his conscience, shall direct. I assume that when a man who is a Senator acts upon a policy, governmental in character, or one that deals in any degree with his nation, and acts as he believes he ought to act, no man has a right to say that because his acts that he is hostile to any individual or to any administration.

I am opposed, Mr. President, to the funding bill that has been favorably reported by the Finance Committee of the Senate; but I decline, because I am opposed to that bill, to be put in opposition to the President of the United States generally or at all or in opposition to the administration that is Republican in politics and that I consider to be the President nor any member of his administration would wish me or any other Senator upon this floor to do otherwise than as his judgment shall direct him to do and as his oath as a United States Senator commands him to do.

So long as I am here, Mr. President, whether anyone shall take an opposite view or not, I shall pursue that course in dealing with those subjects that come before us.

I am curious, I say, about the treaty that is being negotiated, if one is being negotiated, with Germany today.

I am curious about the troops of America that are abroad upon the Rhine today.

I want them brought home. I do not want to pay a million dollars a month for maintaining our troops over there, whether England wishes it or France wishes it, whether the Entente desires it, or whether Germany now asks for it.

I want to bring those troops home, pursuant to a policy that has been mine ever since we have been discussing international questions during the past three years.

I am curious about those troops; I shall ask some questions about them in the future, but I deny that they should be asked either in criticism or in hostility to any administration.

I am curious about the debt that is due to this country from foreign nations. I am curious, I admit, about some details of that debt.

I read the other day that $32,000,000 were paid to Great Britain for transporting troops of the United States to save the day in the great war, at the same time that we had a claim against Great Britain aggregating twelve or fourteen billion dollars.

I have been informed, Mr. President, since the publication of that article that we not only have paid $32,000,000 to Great Britain for troops transported to us in British vessels, but that we have also previously paid—I am now stating only the information that has been conveyed to me—$68,000,000, a total of $100,000,000 for the same item or for similar services; and that we have also paid the great war, $6,000,000 interest upon this debt; that we paid it when we had an offset of twelve or fourteen billion dollars, on the one hand, and when we had an offset, on the other hand, of hundreds of millions of dollars interest due to us.

I have listened to statements upon the floor of this body; I have read the statements of the political economists; I have read, indeed, the objections of the international bankers to us not to collect the interest that is due us from foreign governments. I have seen that all these gentlemen assert that if we collect that interest we not only shall destroy the stability of all the countries abroad but that we shall ruin ourselves at home.

I decline to subscribe to any such political economy as that. I decline to concede that there would follow in the train of the collection of a portion of our interest either ruin abroad or ruin at home.

I want to know how it is that we paid, either the one administration or the other—I am speaking of neither now and in criticism of neither—how it is that we paid interest to Great Britain upon an indebtedness that we owed Great Britain for transporting our troops to help Britain win the great war, when Britain owed us hundreds of millions of dollars interest, which the political economists upon this floor say we must not collect for fear its collection may bring ruin to our country. I cannot understand it.

Mr. President, there is another matter about which I am curious. I congratulate the Senator from Idaho (Mr. Bora) upon winning in this chamber the greatest personal victory that has been won by any United States Senator since I have been a member of this body. I congratulate, too, the President of the United States and the Secretary of State in calling the disarmament conference which they have called.

I hope and I pray that it may be a success in every respect; but the instrument that the disarmament conference will be with it is held in the open or whether it is held in secrecy. And so, Mr. President, curious as I am, I express now the view that is mine, that when the disarmament conference meets in Washington in November we will see as an actuality the nations of the earth meeting in the open, so that the peoples of the earth may be constructively present, at least, and so that the public opinion of the various countries of the world will be able to affect that conference and direct its will in behalf of the people.

Now Is the Time for Friends of Ireland to Act

A Demonstration Should Be Made Which Would Convince the Leaders of Support Throughout the World

President De Valera voices the unanimous decision of the Irish Republican Parliament in an appeal to the friends of Ireland throughout the world to accept the decision of the Irish representatives made, as it is, in the face of death.

Of course, the decision of the Irish representatives, as long as it is so unanimous, must be accepted by the friends of Ireland. We are aware that President De Valera probably had in mind the messages he had received from men of Irish blood whose natural sympathies are with Ireland, but whose financial connections are accessible through British influence. Ireland's material strength must be found outside of Ireland and chiefly in America. Now is the time for the true friends of Ireland to uphold the hands of those in Ireland who are ready to risk their lives in defence of that which they hold sacred.

A demonstration which would convince the Irish leaders that the friends of Ireland throughout the world are behind them, so long as they are united in a decision, will hearten them, and without doubt will promote a settlement which is entirely satisfactory to the Irish people and which will be the only thing to bring permanent peace to them.

Mr. Hays and the Postal Savings

If Banks Permit It He Will Benefit Them and the Country
Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Postmaster-General Hays is trying to improve the Postal Savings Department.

He wants to bring out hidden money that is wasted, non-productive.

He wants to prevent the sending of money abroad by giving to those of foreign birth a bank that they will TRUST.

And he wants to do the honest thing and pay a decent rate of interest.

He suggests only 3 per cent. It might well be 4. Everybody will support Hays in his effort, except those that are controlled by banking interests. And the very banking interests that oppose Hays are as ignorant as they were when they opposed the Federal Reserve system—the only thing that has saved them from the blackest panic this or any other country ever saw.

It is said that the depositors in the Postal Savings Bank should be content with 2 per cent. interest, because their savings are absolutely SAFE.

Of course they are safe, but will the government disagree itself by charging something extra, or withholding something for merely BEING HONEST? A government that is borrowing money from the banks at 5 per cent. can well afford to pay 4 per cent. to the people, using the deposits to pay its debts, and incidentally saving 2 per cent. on the 6 per cent. interest.

Every banker knows what harm is done by dishonest investments in wildcat stocks. Make a man feel that his savings are not SAFE and he will no longer SAVE.

A generously managed Postal Savings Bank, besides bringing out hidden, non-productive money, would create millions of new savings accounts, and thus contribute to the so much desired "stability" and lack of "unrest."

Senator Walsh Headed Right

He Would Have Government Put Unemployed to Work on Reforestation and Other Greatly Needed Projects

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts has offered a resolution in the Senate for an investigation by special Senate committee of the causes of unemployment and methods of giving the unemployed a chance to support themselves by productive labor during the great depression which high railroad rates, arbitrary deflation of prices by the banks in such a way as to injure the producer and to confer very little benefit on the consumer, have brought upon the country.

Unemployment is increasing every day and when the savings which the workmen made during the war and after, when high wages were the vogue, have been exhausted, there will be a great deal of suffering in the country.

Senator Walsh's resolution would instruct the committee "to survey and recommend any or all of the following remedies as alleviation for said unemployment: Public works, such as irrigation, reclamation, forestation, road building, canal building or any other projects of relief" which seem effective. We are almost certain that Senator Walsh is headed in the right direction. A very large part of the men now unemployed could be put to work on the reforestation of the areas where the forests have been ruthlessly destroyed, canals which are in project or which ought to be in project can be built, the lands which need water can be irrigated, swamps which have too much water can be drained and land which is useless to mankind can be made to support millions.

All this is simple. Everybody knows that this is true and everybody knows that men are suffering today for work.

Why, then, do we have to agitate to get it done. Other countries are doing it, especially New Zealand. We suppose that we the obvious thing to do is because we are so afraid to try what we have never done before. Timidity and inertia are the two foes of progress.

French Official Language

The French were agitated, with reason, when it was said, falsely, that French would not be recognized as "official language" at the Washington disarmament conference. English will be spoken, for our statement, lacking the education usual in civilized countries, do not speak foreign languages. French, however, will be official, and it is a wise decision.

The French language, polished, repolished and delved with absolute precision by the French Academy, is by no means the richest language, not comparable with English or German. But it is the more precise language, offering fewest possibilities of misunderstanding.

Cocaine Habit in Italy

By FRANK J. OATES

ILLUSTRATED BY ART. 21—The recent Government legislation for the severe punishment of dealers in drugs has led to grave discoveries at Bologna, Milan, Rome and Turin. Many arrests have been made and large quantities of cocaine have been confiscated, but the amount sold and used has caused the actual living death of hundreds of victims, mostly all young, and of very many women.

They tell me it came from perfidious England during the late war, though others think the older dealer, France, exported it with the many easy-going women who attended on the soldiers and officers. Before those days the poison was unknown. A famous Bologna electrician remarked that its abuse can hardly be called a serious social evil, inasmuch as it kills off the unfit and the non-moral. Its victims deserve their fate. But this is far from true. Although many cases are known, there are many kept hidden.

Familial are ashamed of publicity and hush up the scandal. Chemists, especially in Bologna made fortunes. But their days are over, and great will be their punishment, as many rich, wealthy and famous families are prosecuting ruthlessly, would trench some of them if possible. One broken-down lady admitted having paid thousands of lire to a chemist, and the parents of a dead child were suing for money payment if he would promise to supply no more. But he was arrested. Why should he not sell? If he did not, others would, and the lad was doomed and could never break away.

Now Milan's detectives are busy. They are about the markets. Italy and for years have been disturbing themselves. In one northern town some fifty streets were made of dealers, large and small, and quite as many lawless have been saved from misery, restored to their homes or temporarily detained. At the Central Station a smart youth from Switzerland was marched off to San Fedele, and a search being made, found with this poison and with sachetins. His rooms here were visited, and why young couples, slaves to this vice, were rescued just in time and taken to the internment.

Do not throw away your receipts. Refrain to do so. They may be for old bills, but it is the old bills which come up occasionally for recollection and you want to be ready to show proof that you have paid.

And see that your receipts are dated, too. The fact that you have paid a bill, that you are willing to swear that you have paid it, will not save you from paying it a second time if the firm's books have never given you credit.

It may be due to someone's carelessness that you have not been given credit, but you may not be able to prove it. At times, especially at house-cleaning periods, there is a mighty impulse to get rid of a lot of old papers that seem to be of no use, but you would better keep the old receipts, no matter how much you may regard the space.

It is an excellent plan to pay by check which, if dated properly, is a receipt in itself. It is especially necessary to keep a receipt where a charge account is used, for buying many little things from time to time and giving a check for the money on account afterwards it is easy to forget. But if you always pay by check you can see the evidence easily.
